The Trans-Pacific Partnership is a massive new free trade agreement being negotiated behind-closed-doors in the Dallas metro area from May 8 – 18. Transnational corporations want to use the TPP to:

- Offshore good-paying jobs to low-wage nations and undercut working conditions globally
- Create new tools for attacking environmental and consumer safety policies
- Further deregulate Wall Street banks, hedge funds and insurance companies
- Lengthen patents thereby blocking access to affordable, generic medications

Our best chance of preventing a “NAFTA of the Pacific” is to come together now and drag the TPP out of the shadows. Approximately 600 corporate lobbyists have been given “cleared advisor” status in the TPP negotiations, but the general public has been barred from even reviewing what U.S. negotiators are proposing in our names.
